College is people . . .

A college is people—not a word nor administrators and professors; nor even the knowledge obtained by each of its students. But rather, a college is people. It is interaction of intellect, of environment, and attitudes. It is laughing and crying, loving and hating, wanting and caring for things out of reach. It is sharing and being alone, learning and putting off learning until tomorrow. A college is people.

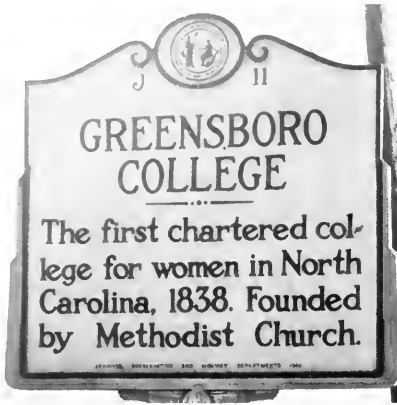

Alone in a crowd . . .

We find ourselves at the beginning of a bewildering and nebulous experience. That first time alone was empty, cold, and incomprehensible. Perhaps it happened during a coffee break or in the middle of a ballgame. It doesn't matter—aloneness isn't particular of time or situation. It's almost frightening to find yourself alone in a compact community of friends and acquaintances. Then, suddenly and subtly, a struggle begins in the choice of truth and self-knowledge. The rising fright is dispelled, for in this time we are involved in things of the mind, and aloneness becomes a rather pleasant novelty. Then, we realize that being alone is a necessity in our rapidly whirling microcosm—a time to think and decide. It is a time we can give to ourselves to gaze into the future, ponder the present, and reflect upon the past. Once the first taste of a certain separateness has been ours, we can find our aloneness—even in a crowd.

A community

within itself . . .

G.C. has its own unique temperament. Here we find ourselves alone for the first time—yet surrounded by peers, superiors, and inferiors. Here we may find our attitudes accepted by some, yet rejected by most. Nevertheless, these are the successes and failures that make us the outstanding figures in the worldly communities. Having the basic necessities for life and social interaction, our college fills the requirements for a successful community.

The choice is ours . . .

In this myriad-sided microcosm of ours there is a choice which belongs solely to the individual. Onlookers can observe, but only those who make the choice can understand. Four years are ours to experiment, deliberate, and choose. Perhaps we will realize an academic pursuit, find love, engage in the didactic, explore sex, or maybe even enter the realm of the ridiculous. These things are our becoming, our striving, our achieving, our failing, our learning. During our four years we seek, choose, discard, and look again—and after the four, the difference will be known. The choice is ours—and the difference is the choice.

Reflections of ways of life . . .

Ways of life which are as diverse as are the people on our campus, but then, that is what makes a campus.

Fall means action. . .

Not just because it's leap year do the G.C. girls chase G.C. men. On the contrary, this is a yearly festive occasion. It consists of a Sadie Hawkins type week in deeding a race to the finish for the most derbies per dorm, an egg toss, an ice melting contest, a pig chase, and various other competitive sports. A prize is given for the most points won and all is forgotten until another Derby Day rolls around.

The girls seem to cause most of the action in the fall. The Emersons and Irvings are more enthusiastic than ever in opposition to each other that is during the powder puff football game. This year there was even a campus wide election of Al Trotter as Campus King. All in all, fall at G.C. means action.

Happiness is many things . . .

and G. C. encompasses the greater part of these. It is the actual, unbelievable passing of four years. It is bidding and making a slam at the Stu. Winter brings sledding—or is that “traying”—to a snowy wonderland. It is a moment alone for some—a laugh, a tease, a certain peacefulness. To the ardent admirers of Slater Food Service, happiness is special meals by candlelight. These things, too, are part of G.C. and a part of each person who comes to spend some time here.

Concert Lecture brought new enthusiasm . . .

as the various programs showed forth appeal to each student. The season began early with a repertoire of classical and modern piano selections by a fiery Spanish interpreter, Alicia de Larrocha. In February, Welsh-born Emlyn Williams held his audience spellbound with his world-known performance of "Dylan Thomas Growing Up." This consisted of various recitations and expressions from Thomas' early essays and poems. Folksingers Addiss and Crofut came in the Spring with their own unique outlook on the music of today. Drawing from the musical resources of over twenty-seven countries, and various musical instruments, the entertainers received a warm and excited welcome.

The Coffee House, A lodging for self expression . . .

brings a new atmosphere to our campus. Miraculously converted by the SCF, the old Psychology Building has become a collage of modern art and feeling as well as a meeting place for those student and faculty members interested in stimulating discussions. "The Wit's End" is G.C.'s embodiment of a present, fast moving generation which achieves its expression through speakers, panels, readings—a sharing and exchange of knowledge, ideas, and ideals.

Homecoming, a newly established G.C. event . . .

is a reunion of friends, a renewal of promises, and a re-emphasis of the "G.C. Spirit." The second G.C. Homecoming in the school's history was marked by the excitement of still another basketball victory, the selection and presentation of the Homecoming Court and its Queen—Miss Joyce Compton, and a wild mêlée of noise, laughter, and music at the Victory Dance held in the Student Center. A time of warm welcome, enthusiastic team support, and nostalgic tears of alumni—this was Homecoming '68.

G.C. Players are involved . . .

in the lives of someone else. It is after much grueling work and the shedding of a few tears that these lives are exposed to the public in such shows as "You Touched Me" and "Kiss Me Kate." Hats off to those showmen who know by the applause of their audiences that their efforts were worthwhile.

Spring is a feeling . . .

beyond the dormitory and classroom walls. It is the time when a man's fancy and a woman's fantasy turn toward the inspiration of beauty.

We came . . .

as individuals among the masses with hopes, ideals, and dreams of things to be. The lingering moments are ones of experience, self-evaluation, and an encounter with truth. We leave as a group who has a knowledge of reality and the ability to see life for what it is.

Academics, the Heart and Purpose of the College, equips the student with knowledge and is the stimulating force behind . . .

They chose to teach. And in so doing, chose to talk: to an eight o'clock class of closed eyes and periodic snores; to a four-hour lab of aspiring biologists and chemists; to an upperclass seminar in which the students fight through stale cigarette smoke to find the profound; and to a rebellious student who can't understand why he must study the Greeks. And teaching is a matter of reading: reading incoherent freshman theses and watching them become senior theses; reading countless contemporary scholarly works in hopes of keeping up with those better students; and reading of the ever-expanding field of research. And teaching is a matter of listening: to those who have learned the thrill of discovering an idea; to those who disagree in spiteful anger, and to those who disagree with friendly knowledge. Teaching is a man with an idea and the ability to communicate it—a man with a student to guide, an imagination to captivate, a power to inspire, and a dedication to serve. They chose to teach, and without them the College would lack meaning and purpose.

DR. J. RALPH JOLLY, President of Greensboro College; A.B., Birmingham-Southern College; B.D., The Divinity School, Duke University; Ph.D., The Divinity School, Vanderbilt University.

A message to students, 1968

A college is many things. It is going to class; it is eating together in the dining hall; it is cheering the team; it is enjoying social activities; and it is just plain living through rapidly changing experiences. For all of us it is studying, reading, digging, thinking—or, in short, learning.

Greensboro College is changing with the times. Conservative enough to be secure and liberal enough to be courageous, we dare to affirm that a college like ours has a great opportunity today. We take pride in our Alma Mater and in the students who go from our campus to serve throughout the world.

While the critics and the prophets of doom are announcing the demise of private education, we on this campus believe that there is a greater need for high quality in education today than ever before. We also believe that we can and do offer quality education to those who are willing to accept the challenges and meet the requirements.

Sincere good wishes to the graduates of 1968 as well as to the continuing classes of our campus family,

President J. RALPH JOLLY

Dr. Jolly is inaugurated as the twelfth President of Greensboro College.

Jolly Sets Pace

There is a particular affinity between President J. Ralph Jolly and the Class of 1968. Both, one might say, were novices four years ago upon entering Greensboro College. Each was perhaps a little wary of the task ahead and possibly somewhat fearful that their own capabilities might not be enough. Each was ambitious and hopeful of fulfilling dreams and achieving goals. What has happened since 1964? Those who have struggled through term papers, tears, and exams, and who have delighted in basketball victories, hard-won grades, and lasting friendships will graduate as the Class of 1968. They have finished one phase of life to go on to another. Their companion through these four years, Dr. Jolly, will continue to set the strong pace of progress which has already been characteristic of his past four years of leadership.

Dr. Jolly assumed the Presidency after having served as Dean of Students at Birmingham-Southern College for six years. After being oriented to G.C. and acquainting himself to the atmosphere of the school, he set to work to provide a comprehensive ten-year plan of improvement. Beginning in 1966, some of these dreams were becoming concrete. One of the most obvious was the realization of intercollegiate sports manifested in a basketball team—the Green Hornets. In the foreseeable future are plans for swimming, tennis, golf, and wrestling. Physical additions also were in evidence; the J.C. Cowan Humanities Building was opened in 1967, and a new women's dorm was begun. The ten-year program also includes plans for a Little Theater, enlarged parking facilities, and more outdoor space for Physical Education.

Academics are not being overlooked as the present student body is well aware. By 1970, a faculty of fifty-two full-time instructors is envisioned with sixty per cent holding a doctorate degree. Variety in departments will increase as will curriculum, which will hopefully include training of kindergarten teachers, a summer internship program for business majors, development of a pre-law curriculum, and an increase of honors programs.

It is evident that this ten-year improvement program as put forth by the President will encompass all phases of college life. Liberal arts will be concentrated on, as a broad education is the chief aim of the school.

The question was raised earlier, "What has happened since 1964?" Only a part of the answer has been given and only a part of President Jolly's dream has achieved actuality. But—here we see potential—here we see power—here we see progress. Graduates of 1968 will go forth knowing that their college days were a period of transition and improvement. They experienced benefits of part of the program, but even more is yet to come. Dr. Jolly will chalk up more victories and make more headlines, and when 1974 arrives and the program is realized—the results will be significant. G.C. will have further adapted to the changing world under the dynamic leadership of President J. Ralph Jolly. The ten-year outline will be filled in and expanded, and Greensboro College will have a promising future.

New Labs Strengthen Art Department

With the recent move into new quarters in the Cowan Humanities Building, the Art Department has expanded facilities to serve students, college, and community. Two spacious, well-lighted studios with much new equipment, and a classroom for lecture courses insure the practical needs in this area for the growing student body. Perhaps the most intriguing aspect of the Department is the Gallery which displays works in painting and sculpture of various students and faculty members. It is the aim of the Art Department to contribute to the student's awareness of his heritage, his surroundings, and his uniqueness as an individual.

Meakins and Denmark Revitalize Education Program

The Department of Education, in close cooperation with the various disciplines, recognizes its responsibility for the welfare of education in the state of North Carolina and in surrounding states. In an effort to fulfill its obligation, the College has developed an outstanding program for the preparation of both elementary and secondary school teachers. The block system of practice teaching assures maximum exposure to the classroom and teaching methods in a minimum period of time.

Student Teaching is vital experience.

English Professors Strive for Individual Quality

In the words of Department Chairman, B.H. Wilson: "English covers many related fields, but it is fundamentally the love and respect for our own native tongue which makes it worth while and closest to our hearts." The department offers a wide range of study to the interested student—creative writing workshops, studies of the greats in thought and literature, and seminar-oriented glimpse of the Moderns. One of the largest departments in the new Humanities, English is striving to fit the role necessary to be "worth-while and closest to our hearts."

CAMILLA HOY; Associate Professor and Chairman of the Department of Foreign Languages; A.B., M.A., University of South Carolina; Ph.D., Byram Mawr College.

The Department of Foreign Languages includes French, German, and Spanish. With aspirations to build the Department, programs for foreign study have been promoted and advised for both faculty members and students. The hope is to instill into those who study a knowledge of the culture from which a language originates as well as a speaking and reading knowledge of that language. Extracurricular activities include visiting lecturers and films in cooperation with the nearby University.

Campus-Wide Talent Key To "Kiss Me Kate!"

Under the direction of Mr. Leonard Hart, the Speech and Drama Department shows the student that effective communication is vital to public and private speaking, debate, and the mechanical means of contact today. The Department also provides extensive extra-curricular activities, the NRT productions being a highlight of the fall semester. The G.C. Players found time between Stage Craft and World Drama to present the two successful and highly acclaimed plays, "You Touched Me" and "Kiss me, Kate!" Participation in the Players' productions is open to any Greenshoro College Student.

WALTER P. WEAVER, Assistant Professor of Philosophy and Religion, Chaplain, A.B., B.D., Duke University; Drew University.

Philosophy and Religion Provoke Student Thought

Although students are still subjected to the minds of Aristotle and Plato, the Philosophy Department aspires toward broader fields. Modern thought is vastly important to the understanding of today's humanity; and it is with this in mind that a curriculum of Whitehead, Bultmann, Tillich, and ethical logistics is offered. Church education, religious psychology, and contemporary American religion merely complement the required study of Old and New Testament.

Music Department

Wins Acclaim for School

The Music Department faculty, led by Mr. Don Hansen, provides instruction in organ, piano, voice, and orchestra instruments. To supplement the classes are faculty recitals, orchestra workshops, and Glee Club, which is in its second year of being co-ed. Although no one was sent to Europe this year, as was last year's Spring tour, the efforts and activities of the Music Department have not slackened. The strains of music—instrumental and vocal—which come from Odell in a steady and unrelenting stream are proof of this.

GERRETH M. McDONALD: Assistant Professor of Music Education; B.M., Ed., University of Nebraska; University of Colorado; M.M., Northwestern University.

Physical Education Builds Discipline

The Physical Education Department at Greensboro College has made gigantic strides in the past years. The staff is small, but this does not apply to the ideas and dreams of those staff members.

Among the activities offered to six-hundred students at G.C. are swimming, dancing, gymnastics, team sports, cross country, golf, tennis, and an extensive intramural program. Perhaps the most exciting and rewarding event has been the formation of a collegiate basketball team—a new addition to the Dixie Conference in '66. Yet, the staff has succeeded in motivating excitement from students in classes as well as in pep rallies and basketball games, and in so doing, has made the growing P.E. Department a vital part of campus life.

Through Psychology We Study Ourselves

The Department of Psychology and Special Education serves many functions. It provides the courses that give psychological procedures and knowledge necessary for vocational endeavors. Field trips to related areas are considered a part of the normal course curriculum. Perhaps an apt motto for the Department has been stated by faculty member Dr. David Irvine: "Using psychology is fine as long as you use it on yourself."

Natural Sciences Are Broadened

The student at Greensboro College is offered much more in the Department of Science and Mathematics than observing echinoderms and adding numerals. Departmental expansion has occurred in faculty, budget, equipment, space, programs, and students. Equipment grants in excess of $30,000 have been awarded this Department. Students have opportunities for assisting faculty research or experimenting on their own. This year four students received research grants from the N.C. Academy of Science. Work with the mouse colony from hairloss-conditions to chromosomal effects of LSD offers the student the opportunity for learning and growth. Chemistry, Physics, and Math, though small facets of the entire Department, are also experiencing growing pains, and in a few years it is hoped that these course offerings will become more extensive. Already new spirit can be observed as this Department makes use of the space left in A & S after completion of the Humanities Building.

M. MYRTIS DAVIS; Professor of Mathematics; A.B., Birmingham-Southern College; M.A., Louisiana State University; University of Kansas.

JAMES E. GARNER; Associate Professor of Mathematics; B.A., M.A., University of Mississippi.

Social Studies Run Gamut

WILLIAM R. FRAZIER; Professor of Economics and Business Administration; B.S., University of North Carolina; M.S., Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Certified Public Accountant, State of North Carolina.

CLINTON C. DANIELS; Associate Professor of Economics; B.S., Colorado College; M.A., University of Southern California; Vanderbilt University; University of North Carolina at Greensboro

The Department of Economics and Business Administration offers the student a chance to develop his own interests and techniques of research and analysis. Programs and seminars this year have offered the student a design specifically for management, development, and self-improvement. A major in Economics and Business Administration is exposed to tax laws, marketing functions, corporation finance, accounting, and business law.

The study of sociology specifically relates to the interaction of the individual and the group. There is an attempt to relate the students' ideas and actions with those events which are contemporary as well as historic—from criminology to race relations to social movements to research and theory. A personal study and a rewarding one is offered the G.C. student from the Department of Sociology.

JOHN W. HUNTER; Assistant Professor of Sociology; A.B., Lycoming College; S.T.B., Ph.D., Boston University; Scandinavian Seminar for Cultural Studies, Copenhagen, Denmark; University of Copenhagen.

From Culture To Campaigns

The History Department runs the gamut from Sumeria to Viet Nam. One of the most active and enthusiastic departments on campus, history refutes the hypothesis that it is a dead study, lifeless, and without meaning. The four staff members bring into their classes the excitement of learning, questioning, and living.

JOHN E. HODGE; Assistant Professor of History and Political Science; B.S., College of Charleston; M.A., Ph.D., University of Illinois.

ELMER L. PURYEAR; Professor of History and Political Science; A.B., Wake Forest College; M.A., Ph.D., University of North Carolina.

Activities Offer a Diversion from the routine of the College, they are a means by which the student can express himself in music, in government, in writing . . .

Organizations are indicative of student life and living for the reason that those who are not leaders are part-takers, reaping the benefits. Students function together as individual and unique voices heard far above the bustling murmurs of campus activities. To unite is to create.

There are those projects which continue year to year, each complemented by a renewed interest, yet always setting and obtaining higher goals to meet the needs of the college community. A student can find an outlet for any personal interest and even those relating to his own field of study. Governmental, literary, scientific, dramatic, educational, and business areas serve to provide a well-rounded and varied range of extra-curricular activities.

Honoraries

Annie Henry and Tom Wagner were selected by the student body as the Senior boy and girl who best personify friendship, cooperation, devotion to duty, and generosity of their time and abilities to the Greensboro College campus and to their fellow students.

Marshals

This honor is for the students who have not had the recognition that others have had throughout their four years in college. They are selected at the end of their Junior year, on the basis of academic standing, leadership abilities, service to the school, personality and character. The Marshals serve at graduation and various other college functions throughout the year. The chief marshal is chosen by the faculty and administration but the others are voted upon by the Junior class.

AKG is expressly for the recognition of young women who are already active leaders on campus whether behind the scenes or in the spotlight. Membership is not a goal but a reward—a way of saying that your gifts of time, energy, and enthusiasm go not unnoticed. They must have been enrolled in the college for at least a year, a member of the Junior or Senior class, and have obtained a grade point ratio 2.5. The girls perform many services helpful to fellow students.

Alpha Psi Omega

A National Honorary Fraternity, Alpha Psi Omega is for those students sincerely interested in dramatics. Students are admitted only after obtaining the required number of points determined by the National Headquarters. Points are obtained by actively participating in each field of dramatics. The purpose of the fraternity is to further the dramatic education of those who have already proven a sincere interest in the theater.

Gamma Iota Sigma

High scholarship is the primary requisite for membership in the Greensboro College honor societies. They give due recognition to those students who have consistently maintained high standards of scholarship and academic achievement. The minimum quality point ratio for a senior membership in GAMMA IOTA SIGMA is 3.4 while the minimum average for junior and sophomores in the IOTA SOCIETY is 3.7. The freshmen must have a minimum average of 3.2 for the SIGMA SOCIETY.

STATE STUDENT LEGISLATURE J. F. Bowman, B. Scott, S. Purver, D. Miller Chairman, W. Taylor

Facets of Student Government

Student Government covers almost every phase of campus life. The newly formed Inter-Club Council serves as a means by which campus organizations gain greater communication and understanding. The Assembly Committee is instrumental in the selection of speakers and programs which they believe will be interesting and beneficial to the students. The National Student Association is an organization made up of approximately four-hundred universities and colleges in the United States. It sponsors several programs on campus such as the Student Personnel Directory and the College Bowl. The State Student Legislature functions as an opportunity for students interested in government and politics to exercise their opinions on pertinent issues. Meeting in Raleigh, N.C. for a three-day session, the G.C.S.S.L. and students from other colleges throughout North Carolina hold a mock legislative session. Student officials are elected, bills are passed, and resolutions are made which are referred to the North Carolina State Legislature.

National Student Association Campus Director Gloria Sloan is hard at work with Student Cabinet secretary, Candy Lambeth.

Women's Judicial Board

The Women's Judicial Council, a student elected body, maintains jurisdiction over infractions of the women's social regulations and academic rules which have been set up by Student Government. The class representatives and council officers composing the board serve as liaison between the administration and the female community in the voicing of ideas and desires.

*John Ayers
Chairman*

The Men's Judicial Council enforces the social and academic regulations of the male population of the College. This organization is a separate and independent judiciary apart from the Student Government. To provide a broader scope of the male student's campus functions, resident and non-resident students are represented on the board.

Honor Council

The purpose of the Honor System is to develop a mature atmosphere of responsibility, honesty, and integrity on the Greensboro College campus. For the existence of harmony in a group, individuals must have respect for the goals and principles of the group as a whole and each individual must perform his share of maintaining such goals.

The Honor Council was established to uphold the Honor System, make decisions and hold trials concerning infractions, and enforce the decisions made. The Council consists of a Chairman, and a girl and boy representative from the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes, all elected at large. Areas under the jurisdiction of the Honor Council are cheating, stealing, and falsification.

Court of Appeals

As apart of Student Government, the Court of Appeals assures the students a right to appeal any case heard by the Men's or Women's Judicial Board, or the Honor Council. Appeals must be submitted in writing to its chairman within twenty-four hours of conviction.

This year the Court aided in the operation of the newly opened Student Lounge in the library. The Court stands ready to aid the Student Cabinet and other campus organization when needed.

Publications

The Handbook is organized in the summer by the editor, business manager, and Dean of Students, and is published in time to send to the students before the fall semester begins. The Handbook contains a statement of academic and social policies, a description of branches of the student government and its constitution, and a brief resume of the organizations and clubs on campus. Dedicated to the freshmen, it helps them orient themselves to the active life in the college community as well as keeping all students abreast of the everchanging life of C.C.

Candy Lambeth-Editor, Martha Clodfelter-Business Manager.

LYRE

The Lyre is a literary magazine for the artistic and creative expression of the Greensboro College student. Open by selection to all students, the Lyre offers opportunities for publication in poetry, fiction, essay, and drama as well as in musical composition and art. The Lyre—an excellent way of expressing student thought and perceptions.

THE COLLEGIAN

Published by the Students of Greensboro College

The purpose of the Collegian is to keep the students of Greensboro College informed of the events on the campus and in the community. Published bi-weekly by the student body, it features several columns such as the "Probe", "In & Around the Green Room", "Potpourri", and "Greek Columns". In addition, the Collegian has news and sports coverage along with editorial columns. The newspaper is the stronghold of student freedom, independent of any class, and with editors as the only censors.

Glee Club

An organization sponsored by the Music Department, the Greensboro College Glee Club is open by try-outs and selection to all Greensboro College students. Hours of practice and hard work comprise the preparation for fall and spring tours as well as college and community entertainment. The warm reception of the club by their many audiences throughout the year left the members with the satisfaction of a job well done.

Aquabelles

The Aquabelles not only participate in swimming exercises, but they learn to perform a type of dancing in the water called synchronized swimming. They work hard all year so that they will be able to exhibit a fine spring performance. Aquabelles are able to combine exercise with grace and beauty.

Aquabelles practice a formation for their spring production.

Miss Taylor, the advisor, plans for Modern Dance to participate in "Kiss Me Kate" featuring dance members Judy Baker and Ann Midkiff.

Modern Dance

Modern dance is a means of self-expression for the participating girls. They are able to express emotions such as hope, fear, anger, love, anxiety, chaos, happiness, and sadness all by dance pantomimes. Fun, fellowship, grace, and poise are all a part of the dancer's environment. These, along with the basic skills of dance are learned and will result in a graceful dramatic spring recital.

G. C. Players

The G.C. Players is composed of any students that are interested in dramatics or the theater. They produce both a fall and spring production. Students not only participate in the acting aspect of the production, but they build the sets, operate the sound and lights and work on make up. The G.C. Players also help with other productions on campus such as the society's plays and the directing the class's one act plays.

Orientation

Student Christian Fellowship

Without the aid of the S.C.F. in unloading cars for freshmen and helping to move them into their rooms, the return to school in September would be much more hectic! The influence of this organization, to which any student may belong, has been felt in a concrete way by the entire campus, especially this year when after weeks of never-ending work, they converted an abandoned building on campus into a coffee house, "The Wits End." The programs the S.C.F. sponsored during Religious Emphasis Week have proved to be some of the most thought-provoking and stimulating of the year.

Religious Education

One of the aspects of Christianity is helping those who are not quite so fortunate as we are, and through its tutoring program, the Christian Education Club puts this belief into practice. Every week at a community center in Greensboro, members of this club sponsor tutoring services for young children, and at Christmas they give a party. Their method of acquiring sufficient funds for this project is actually of benefit to the campus—they sell doughnuts! Because Christian Education encompasses a wide range of vocations, the programs of the monthly meetings are designed to present these opportunities, as well as inform members about graduate schools in which they are interested.

Music Education

The M.E. Club, consisting of all Music Education majors, purports in meeting twice a year with professionals in their field to realize aspects of teaching, other than those gained in classroom work. The organization is a member of the National and State Music Education Conference.

Student National Educational Association

Students who are majoring in some form of education compose the S.N.E.A., the student organization corresponding to the professional National Education Association. Its programs are designed to give the members a deeper insight into the many facets of education and to help them approach the vocation with a more informed, ethical attitude. Through this association the members are involved in a movement toward better education and are made to realize that they will be holding primary roles in attaining this goal.

Day Students' Association

Since non-resident students play integral roles in the activities on campus, they have formed the Day Students' Association so they can better keep abreast of what is happening on campus. The women non-residents can meet in a specially-provided room in Greensboro Dorm; the men meet in a room in Men's Dorm.

Psychology And Special Education

Because the people who belong to this club are majors or minors in either psychology or special education, the programs which are arranged and organized by students are geared toward giving a deeper insight into various aspects of their fields and the vocations. In essence, the club affords an opportunity for the practical application of principles and theories of psychology and special education.

Miss Echo

Miss Echo 1968 is a girl chosen for her beauty, grace, charm, and poise. She is a symbol of these qualities which to some degree are present in every G.C. girl. The choosing of this year's Miss Echo was a new and special treat to the campus. Nineteen girls, nominated by various organizations, competed for the title, and were narrowed to eight finalists by a panel of seven faculty and administration judges. These eight girls had dinner with another set of judges selected from the Greensboro area not associated with the campus; and later in the evening were judged in an evening dress presentation. This is truly an honor for the young lady who was chosen to represent G.C. as Miss Echo 1968—Miss Betty Waller.

Sports Are An Intregal

part of the life of the College. For the participant they are a means of venting his frustrations; for the spectator they are a means of anguish or joy. For all they provide spirit . . .

Fostering spirit and pride in Greensboro College sports provide a mode of expression for the student. Our newly formed victorious basketball team is backed by fired-up students and dedicated coaches who both are instrumental in promoting all-important team and school spirit. Sports afford an outlet for frustration and enthusiasm. It is the spirit which produces a united effort gaining support from a united student body.

DIAC

Stan Morgan-Captain

"WE'RE NUMBER ONE", the chant that has rung from the rafters of Hanes Gymnasium from our fifth conference game to the last, is the phrase that best describes the Greensboro College HORNETS. In only our second year of intercollegiate athletics, the G.C. Hornets captured the D.I.A.C. title with an 11-1 record. Four of the team members held conference honors this year: Jimmy Radford was named to the All-Tournament team, and Dean Oldham, Stan Morgan, and Randy Hunter were named to the All-Conference. The crowds were always behind the Hornets, — when the Hornets were down in their non-conference games, the spirit was still up; and the spirit of Greensboro College will always be a lasting and unequalled spirit.

This is the end of our season, the beginning of many more. Worthy precedents have been established upon which we can build. To C.C. there is no such thing as standing still, neither is there any such thing as being second best. "WE'RE NUMBER ONE", in every sense of the word!

Coach of the year

Coach William Ariail and Assistant Coach Milton Reece have worked with the "Green Hornets" these past two years and this year they have seen their efforts rewarded.

Often, the team only receives the glory and the coaches fall back into the shadows—overlooked! But this year our coach, Bill Ariail, received the DIAC "Coach of the Year" award. Of this we, the students, are extremely proud. We have not only a top-notch team but an A-1 Coach also.

To you, Coach Ariail, we say Thank You; you have given us something else to be proud of here at Greensboro College.

Home of the Champs!

The Class is the College

not the buildings, not the administration, not the professors, nor the activities,
but the student . . .

From the first suitcase you lift out of the car onto the campus, the burden becomes increasingly heavier. You come as a freshman who is constantly awake with the wonder of becoming an adult. You return as sophomores with renewed vigor to make the knowledge scene. You come as juniors—resolute in your attempts to know yourself, live life, and find the world. You leave as seniors with the question, "What after four?" And hopefully, the four years have given you the decision-making finesse to find out, if not to actually know.

You sleep through eight o'clock lectures. You cry in frustration at Administration. You have four years, and you laugh, cry, dance, and sing through them. And perhaps, along the way, you learn a little, discover people—and, yes, maybe you even learn to live. As you pick up that final suitcase, packed and repacked with clothes, lamps, books, learning, and memories, you see the world that goes beyond West Market Street—and it is yours.
